

Wednesday Writing Workshop

For English 1010 students

Located in Coe Library Room 302, right above the circulation desk
Open hours 1:00-4:00, no appointment needed
Groups and individuals welcome

We look forward to helping you with

- making sense of the assigned readings
- making connections between readings
- understanding writing assignments
- brainstorming, drafting and revising
- developing thesis statements
- organizing and transitioning between sections
- performing research and understanding citation rules
- identifying relevant quotes in your reading and research
- integrating evidence into your writing
- responding to instructor feedback

How it will work:

- drop in during the open hours
- talk with your fellow students and the Writing Center advisors about your reading/writing assignments
- work individually or together on a specific piece of writing
- use the Writing Center as a writing space: during these hours, the room is YOURS, use it to discipline yourself as a writer—this will help you to think, read, draft, and revise in a timely fashion. Don't wait until the night before; come in and get it done while we are here to help you!

For more information, call the Writing Center at 766-5250 or drop by during the open hours to see what's happening.
